The Falls of the Mynach are situated in the midst of the wonderfully beautiful country in the vicinity of the Devil's Bridge. This charming piece of glen scenery has been formed by the continuous passage of the Rivers Rheidol and Mynach, which tumble down from their mountain sources to the lowlands by means of this deep and rocky channel, in parts nearly 800 feet in depth, making in their course a fine series of falls. The one here shown is known as the Lower Falls of the Mynach or the Devil's Bridge Falls.
